            Gbm E D

        A                           G
There's a mountain and it's mighty high
        D                       E E
You cannot see the top unless you fly
        A                   G
There's a molehill on proven ground
        D                   E E
Ain't nowhere to go if you hang around

Gbm             D                       E
Everyone wants to sell whats already been sold
Gbm             D                       E
Everyone wants to tell whats already been told
Gbm                     E                   D
What's the use of money if you ain't gonna break the mould
        Bm              Dbm         D
Even at the centre of the fire, there is cold
        G               A
All that glitters, ain't gold

Interlude: A G D E E x2

        A           G
There's an ocean of despair
        D           E
There are people living there
            A           G
They're unhappy each and every day
            D                       E
But hell is not fashion so what you trying to say

Gbm             D                       E
Everyone wants to sell whats already been sold

Everyone wants to tell whats already been told

All that glitters, ain't gold

Interlude: A G D E E x2

            A           G
There's a lady 99 years old
            D                   E E
If she led a good life heaven takes her soul
            A                   G
That's the theory and if you don't wanna know
D                       E               E
Step aside and make a way for those who want to go

Gbm             D                       E
Everyone wants to sell whats already been sold
Gbm             D                       E
Everyone wants to tell whats already been told
Gbm                     E                   D
What's the use of money if you ain't gonna break the mould
        Bm              Dbm         D
Even at the centre of the fire, there is cold
