VERSION 2:
"Climbing Up The Walls"
>From OK Computer
by Radiohead
Tabbed By Chuck Frame

There is little guitar that you can hear properly to speak of in the recording, but if you use these chords you can make a reasonable sounding version of Climbing Up The Walls. (Those of you who know how to play Bullet With Butterfly Wings by the Smashing Pumpkins will notice that the tab is similar. (I am not sure about some of the exact names of the chords but bear with me.):

Thom plays an acoustic guitar (live at least) Ed plays electric. Jonny play no guitar on this track. At Glastonbury, he had what looked like the remote control of a remote controlled car, to make weird noises. During the verses, Ed plays harmonics (I don't know where) - and towards the end jonny plays some piano-like instrument to make the howling noises

Intro: & Chord Index:

Bm Bm Bm G Em Em Em G

Verse:

Bm (G ) Em
I am the key to the lock in your house
(G ) Bm G Em
That keeps your toys in the baseme__nt
G Bm G Em
And If you get too far in__side
G Bm G Em
You'll only see my reflecti__on etc.

Chorus (play f# on 2nd fret of low e string)

Em (Gb ) G
Anyway you turn, I'll be there
Open up your skull, i'll be there Em
climbing up the walls

etc.

the fiddly bit at the start of the second verse is something like for the solo, try some unison bends, like in bones
