

Rivers & Robots - Author / Perfector

```
And You are worthy of the highest praise
                          tom:
                                                                Am7 Em
                                                                              D
                                                            The Author and Perfector of our faith
           Am7 Em
                                        Bm
                                                                Am7 Em
 You?ve been there from the start
                                                            And nothing else compares to Your great name
   C
                                                                   Am7 Em D C
             Am7
The Author of my peace
                                                            You turn brokenness to beauty
                                                                    Am7 Em D
Beginning and the end
                                                            You turn brokenness to beauty
    C Am7
You are surrounding me
                                                             ( C D Em Bm )
  Em
It all begins with You
                                                            [Ponte]
This life is Your design
                                                             You are writing the perfect story
      Em
You?re with me ?til the end of time
                                                            Turning ashes into beauty
                                                            Turning songs of sorrow into songs of joy again
    Am7
                        Bm
           Em
And You are worthy of the highest praise
                                                            You?re revealing Your endless glory
    Am7 Em
                 D
The Author and Perfector of our faith
                                                            Leading us in the way of mercy
   Am7 Em Bm
And nothing else compares to Your great name $\mathsf{Am7}$ Em $\mathsf{D}$ C
                                                            Taking broken lives and making everything new again
You turn brokenness to beauty
       Am7 Em D
                                                             You are writing the perfect story
You turn brokenness to beauty
                                                            Turning ashes into beauty
( Am7 Em Bm C )
( Am7 Em Bm C )
( Am7 Em Bm C )
                                                            Turning songs of sorrow into songs of joy again
(Am7 Em Bm C)
                                                            You?re revealing Your endless glory
[Segunda Parte]
                                                            Leading us in the way of mercy
                                                            Taking broken lives and making everything new again
And nothing in this world
                                                            [Refrão]
     С
Could ever take your place
                                                                 Am7
                                                                        Em
                                                                                   Bm
And nothing else compares to your unending grace
                                                            And You are worthy of the highest praise
  Em
                Bm
                                                                Am7 Em D C
Whatever I have gained
                                                            The Author and Perfector of our faith
                                                                Am7 Em
                                                                                 Bm
                                                            And nothing else compares to Your great name $\operatorname{\textsc{Am7}}$ Em $\operatorname{\textsc{D}}$ C
I count it all as loss
                   Bm
To know this all-surpassing love
                                                            You turn brokenness to beauty
                                                                    Am7 Em D C
[Refrão]
                                                            You turn brokenness to beauty
Acordes
```

