The Smashing Pumpkins - Here Is No Why

```
Tom: A
                                                                 star cannot
                                                                                        shine
                                                                                                       over to you
                                                                   |-Palm Mute-|
[INTRO]: A, NOT A.
                                                                               May the king of
                                                                                                  gloom
                                                                   |-Palm Mute-|
[RIFF A]:
                                                                                Be for_ever dooooomed
   The useless ... another day The endless.. death rock and in your sad machines
boooooy___
                                                                          you'll forever stayyy____ Repeat [RIFF A]: Mascara sure and lipstick lost ... glitter burned by restless thoughts
                                                                          burning up in speed
        of being forgotten
                                                                          lost inside the dreams
                                                                                                             of teen machines
[NEXT RIFF, this one varies]: Distortion comes in REALLY big [interlude leading up to solo]:
here.
                                                                The useless drag, the empty days the lonely towers of long mistakes
        and in your sad machines to forgotten faces and faded loves sitting still was never enough you'll forever staaay thanx a bunch.
                                                                   |-Palm Mute-|
        desperate and displeased with whoever you are and if your giving in(now thats a scream)
                                                                   |-Palm Mute-|
            and you're a star
                                                                                then your giving uuup [The A goes on a little longer here]
                                                                       cause in your sad machines Somewhere
                           he pulls
                                         his hair down
                                                                         you'll forever stay
over a frowning
                smile
                                         A hidden cannot burning up in speed
find the secret
                                                                          lost inside the dreams
                                                                                                             of teen machines
```

Acordes

