

Sonata Arctica - Good Enough Is Good Enough

```
tom:
              Db (forma dos acordes no tom de D )
                                                                        D
                                                          Good enough was good enough for me
Em Bm Gb G
                         Afinação: Eb Ab Db Gb Bb Eb
Intro: Gbm B E A E
                                                          As it should always be
                                                                                   Α
                                                                         D
                                                          You who broke my heart and still I grieve
         Dbm
It was not hard - to choose all the words that I should Em D Gb Gbm B
          Dbm
                                                          How can you be over me?
Put in your mouth
                                                          ( E A E Gbm )
( B E A E )
D A
In my own play of shadows
         Dbm
Beetween lines, word for word, honey
                                                          I'd always thought we'd made it, found a way to live together Gbm Dbm D A E
Bm Gbm
See who I am?
                                                          You saved the best for last and now it's too late
Out where nothing's forgiven
                                                                           Dbm
                                                          I count the hours of the day that
A small yet very loud part of me is
                                                          D A E
                                                          Seems to last forever
Still screaming after you
                                                          Bm
                                                                        Gbm
                                                          Words through the door
Good enough was good enough for me
Em Bm Gb G
                                                          A glance from a broken window Bm Gbm
As it should always be
                                                          I found your key from the floor
           D
                       Α
You who broke my heart when it was weak
                                                          And my heart, suddenly, cut off clean
Em D Gb Gbm B
                                                          G D A
                                                          Guess you were not meant for me
( E A E Gbm )
( B E A E )
                                                          As it should always be
                                                                      Ď
                                                          You who broke my heart and still I grieve
Em D Gb G
        Dbm
                 D
I had a dream you broke - with your twisted way
                                                          How can you be over me?
Gbm Dbm D
                               Α
Still leaving me? Please take your time, but go away
                                                          Good enough was good enough for me
               Dbm
Don't flash that light anymore, honey
                                                                     Bm Gb G
                                                          As it should always be
      Gbm
The seasons change
                                                          You who's spread a tale of lies about me Em D Gb D
I was the summer to your heart
Bm Gbm
                                                          And I believed it, my heart's got a leak
The winter lured you away more than once now, I know
```

I am free

Acordes

