

Sufjan Stevens - Majesty Snowbird

Tom: C
                                                                Is it the right word you designed for me?
                                                                Is it the broken word or good advice i need?
   Album: Unreleased
                                                                Is the tapestry set beneath my wings?
                                                                Is it mysterious, glorious? Indeed.
This version was played at the Crystal Ball Room in Portland
                                                                F Am G G x4
                                                                [Bridge] (play the part between the braces |: :|)
Tuning: Standard
This is the part which is played initially by the piano, then the trumpet and finally it's the guitar solo towards the end. They are all pretty much the exact same thing so I G
will tab it once here so you can do what you like with it.
It's always played when the chords are F Am G G
                                                                    Don't stop,
                                                                                  don't break.
                                                                                                 You can delight because you
                                                                have a place
                                                                    Quiet room, I need you now
                                                                [Chorus - F C Am D]
                                                                Is it the right word?
                           G
                                         G
                                                                Is it the broken word?
            Am
                                                                Is it the majesty?
                                                                Is it the tapestry?
            Am
                                                                This part is played by one of the trumpets
Intro: F Am G G x8
                                                                                                                    G
[Verse]
                               Am
                                                                                   Am
    Rain bird, laughing in the olive tree, la la dee dah
                                      \mathsf{Am}
    Colored shirt, with the alabaster altarpiece, you made for
                                                                                                                    G
    Summer sweet, some forgiven
    Your advice is all that seems to matter much to me
                                                                [Chorus - F C Am D]
    Call it sweet, call it something paradise
                                                                Is it the right word?
                                                                Is it the broken word?
[Chorus]
                                                                Is it the tapestry?
                                                                Is it the majesty?
                                  Am
Is it the right word
                                  you designed for me?
                        C
                                  Am
                                                   D
                                                                    Don't stop,
                                                                                  don't break.
Is it the broken word
                                  or good advice i need?
                                                                                                  You can delight because you
                                                                have a place
Is the half as sweet
                                  set aside for me?
                                                                    Don't stop,
                                                                                   don't break.
                                                                                                  You can delight because you
                                                                have a place
                                  Am
                                   is it something ripe and
                                                                    Don't stop,
                                                                                                  You can delight because you
Is it mysterious?
                                                                                  don't break.
sweet?
                                                                have a place
                                                                    Don't stop,
                                                                                                  You can delight because you
                                                                                   don't break.
F Am G G x4
                                                                have a place
[Verse - F C Am D]
                                                                (slower)
Snowbird, your sister said she needed me, la la dee dah
                                                                    Don't stop,
                                                                                   don't break.
                                                                                                  You can delight because you
Show them first, show them what you did for me, la la dee dah
                                                                have a place
Quiet sound, and little soldier sent beneath
                                                                    Quiet room, i need you now?
And epaulets that covered every shoulder
                                                                ---- If someone can tab the end I'll steal it and glue it on Call it sweet come take Forget the things I said, to please here.
[Chorus - F C Am D]
