[Pré-Refrão]

Intro: Am G F
                                                              Always like this, we don't help it
                                                              Acting sideways, is it selfish when we [Primeira Parte]
                                                              [Refrão]
This feeling is strange the way that we disconnect
And I know that things change but it's filling me with regret
                                                              Let the space grow
Time did us dirty
                                                              Fade into an echo
We live and we're learning
                                                              Let the spa-ace grow oh oh oh
Learning apart I guess
                                                              [Ponte]
It don't stop the hurting or feeling the burden
                                                              There you go again, in my head
We're starting to play pretend
                                                              We can't seem to cover the distance
[Pré-Refrão]
                                                              If we could confess, pull the thread
You never call and neither do I
                                                              We'll wish that we stayed more consistent
Missing your voice an echo at night
                                                              [Pré-Refrão]
I hear the walls and they've been talking, tell a story that's You never call and neither do I
longer
Than ours is
                                                              Missing your voice an echo at night
Always like this, we don't help it
Acting sideways, is it selfish when we Ours is [Refrão]
                                                              Always like this, we don't help it
Let the space_grow
                                                              Acting sideways, is it selfish when we
Fade into an echo
                                                              [Refrão]
Am G
Let the spa-ace grow oh oh
                                                              Let the space_grow
       E Am G F
Fade into an echo
                                                              Fade into an echo
[Segunda Parte]
                                                                   G
                                                              Let the spa-ace grow oh oh
It's been a while but I'm still wondering
                                                              Fade into an echo
If we gave it our all would you let me in again
                                                              [Final]
Back of the bar, whiskey and sour, thinking 'bout old times
                                                              Ooh uh oh oh an echo
Got a weight on my heart why you making this harder
                                                              Ooh uh oh fade into an echo
