

The Weeknd - Reflections Laughing (feat. Travis Scott)

Cooped up in that hotel room?
                tom:
                Bm
                                                               I know you
Intro: Bm Em Gbm Em Bm
                                                               You still got that adrenaline from the concert
Don't you let me down
                                                               Ain't no way you're asleep
If you let me drown
                                                               My girl told me she saw you in Dallas, said you didn't look
I'll die in your arms again
                                                               That you barely finished the show
I'll die in your arms
                                                                  I just hope you're not back to the old you
I won't make a sound
                                                               How much longer you in Texas for?
Blood on the ground
                                                               I'm just worried, you worked so hard to be better
When they take my crown
                                                               And now you're back, drowning in that shit
If they take my crown
                                                               Em
                                                                 Don't let this industry break you, baby

Gbm Em Bm
                                                               Wait, I been up tourin' state, 45 off a safe
Ωh
                                                               At the top is my place, you and I, different wave
                                                               Always know when you're late, I could never tell you wait
Reflections lookin' back at me
                                                               Made me talk at the lake, lavish life type of estate
They're smilin', they're smilin'
I'm trapped inside a gilded cage
                                                               Losin' time when you pace, what we can do if you'd waste
A golden blade I'm sharpening
                                                               I know the sky's been in haze, you never been through this
It pleases you, I'll see it through
                                                               Been in fire, livin' fake, know you try, but it's late
I feel your chill across my skin
                                                               I run the lobby, every summer, buy her body
The seasons never change
                                                               Two-step a stutter
Don't you let me down
                                                               Platinum 'round my wrist, bird chirp like I'm Stunna
                                                               Look around this bitch while the DJ set cut up
If you let me drown
I'll die in your arms again
                                                               Flashes from the pics in my sections while I'm fucked up
                                                                                           Gbm
                                                                               G
I'll die in your arms
                                                               Bad bitch I been waitin' to get with, hope I don't nut up
I won't make a sound
                                                               Yeah, nut up, man, this shit is trouble
Blood on the ground
                                                               I been hittin' licks, seein' splits, doin' double
When they take my crown
                                                               No, it's no events, check my temp, watch it bubble
If they take my crown
                                                                  Don't you let me down
                                                                           Em

                                                               I won't make a sound
                                                               Blood on the ground
                                                               When they take my crown
I know you're up
                                                               If they take my crown
You think I don't know you're staying up all night
                                                               What does that shit feel like anyway?
