

The Who - Too Much Of Anything

Tom: A

(intro) A A A A D D A A

I think these hands have felt a lot,
 I don't know, what have I touched,
 I think these eyes have seen a lot,
 I don't know, maybe they've seen too much.

I think this brain has thought a lot,
 Searching, trying to find the crutch,
 I think this heart has bled once too often,
 This time it's bled a bit too much.

Too much of anything, is too much for me,
 Too much of everything gets too much for me.

I can't remember before '49,
 But I know that '48 was there,
 My ears let in what I should speak out,
 Hmm, there's something in the air.

D G D

I've overloaded on my way,
 Bye, bye, you better keep in touch.
 Think your ears hear a whole lot of music,
 And like me they've caught a bit too much.
 Too much of anything, is too much for me,
 Too much of everything gets too much for me.

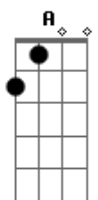

I think these hands have felt a lot,
 I don't know, what have I touched,
 I think these eyes have seen a lot,
 I don't know, maybe they've seen too much.

I think this brain has thought a lot,
 Oh, searching, trying to find the crutch,
 I think this heart has bled once too often,
 This time it's bled a bit too much.

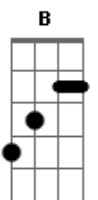

Too much of anything, is too much for me,
 Too much of everything gets too much for me.
