```
QUkecifras
```

The Wonder Years - Flowers Where Your Face Should Be

```
The redwoods feel lonely and lunar and distant tom:
               D
                                                                                                               G
                                                                                                                     D
                                                              The sun comes in fragments through breaks in the trees
            [Primeira Parte]
                                                                                                         G
                                                                                                               D
                                                              And I feel further from home than I've ever been
D
                                                              These thin lines of light across space tether you to me
Bright blue hydrangeas
                                                                              Em
                                                                                                                 G
G
Lost in the weeds
                                                              They pull in my memories, back to our apartment on 2nd Street
                                                                      Em
Bus stops and barbed wire on the way to stare
                                                              Through the South-facing window the light catches lengths of Fm
At the heart of the earth from the Poas peak
                                                              your hair
                                                Em
                                        G
Just like the ones that we grew back in Jersey
                                                              Like a path that you left me
                                    G
Hung upside down, drying out for the wedding
                                                              [Refrão]
[Segunda Parte]
                                                                   D Dbm Bm
                                                                                  Α
                                                                                              G
                                                              Well I saw you last night in my dream
                                                                             D Dbm Bm
D
                                               G
                                                                                                Α
There's a man with his head in his hands on the sidewalk
                                                              But there were azaleas where your face should be
D
                                          G
His wife's there behind him just off of the street
                                                              [Ponte]
D
                                        G
                                                                        D
She scratches his back as he sobs on the asphalt
                                                                                     Fm
                                                              Pieces of us in the morning sun
                                G
And what strikes me most is the symmetry
                                                                                    G
                            Em
                                                              Sleeping bags under the 101
How they're framed just like you and me
                                                                     D
                                                                             Em
                                                              She takes off his glasses and she falls asleep again
                                  G
When the light from the hospital's eastern wing
                                                              They don't got much but goddamn they got love
       Em
                                                        G
Tangles up in your hair and the sadness it pooled in my heart
                  G
                                                              [Refrão]
Starts emptying slowly
                                                                  D Dbm Bm
                                                                                  Δ
                                                                                              G
                                                                                                    G [Refrão]
                                                              Well I saw you last night in my dream
                                                                      D
                                                                          Dbm Bm
                                                              I'm gonna marry you underneath driftwood from Crescent City
   D Dbm Bm
                                G
Well I saw you last night in my dream
              D Dbm Bm A
                                               G
                                                      D
                                                              [Final] D Dbm Bm A G
And there were hydrangeas where your face should be
                                                                     D A Bm A G
                                                                     D Dbm Bm A G
[Terceira Parte]
                                                                     D A Bm A G
Acordes
```

