                                                                I miss your skin, I miss your touch
                                                                     Dbm
                                                                I never thought it?d hurt this much
  Α
We all lie just to get by
                                                                          B
                                                                I hate this feeling in my gut
It feels fine for a little while
                                                                              Gbm
                                                                I wish you would quit me, I wish you would just leave
Dbm
I can?t keep it up for long
                                                                                   Dbm
                                                                'Cause I can never walk away
Dbm
Cause I?m spinning a web and I?m stuck and it?s fucked
                                                               And so it?s up to you to break me
But I know this will hurt
                                     Dbm
               Dbm
'Cause when I?m hurt, I treat you worse
          Gbm
I miss your skin, I miss your touch
                                                               You can have my body, just not my soul
     Dbm
I never thought it?d hurt this much
                                                               Can?t give what?s not mine anymore
          В
                                                                                          Dbm
                                                               Have my body, just not my soul
I hate this feeling in my gut
              Gbm
                                                                        Α
I wish you would quit me, I wish you would just leave
                                                               You can have my body, I?ve lost control
         Dbm
                                                                               B Dbm
'Cause I can never walk away
                                                               Can?t live on my own anymore
And so it?s up to you to break me
                                                               Have my body, just not my soul
                                                                                              B Dbm
                                                               Have my body, but not my soul
(A A Dbm Dbm )
                                                               Have my body, but not my soul
And I?ll try to say goodbye
                                                                          Gbm
                                                                I miss your skin, I miss your touch
I?ll be fast to save you time
                                                                     Dbm
Dbm
I can?t help but stay the night
                                                                I never thought it?d hurt this much
Dbm
                                                                         В
You?re alarmed and you?re hurt and I just make it worse
                                                                I hate this feeling in my gut
                                                                              Gbm
When I run through your veins
                                                                I wish you would quit me, I wish you would just leave
         Dbm
                                   Dbm
                                                                                   Dbm
'Cause when I?m hurt, I treat you worse
                                                                'Cause I can never walk away
                                                                R
                                                               And so it?s up to you to break me
          Gbm
