I keep waking at night in the freezing cold

Staring at the shadows coming up the walls
                                                                     It's just a silhouette, a flick in the blinds
                                  Bb
Giving me a feeling I can't define
                                                                     It's just a mind trick, I don't know why
