

Tor Miller - Crust Punk Queen

Tom: A

You are into the wild
 Always a wild child
 The pulse of their lives is too calm and mild
 No structured living
 No plans to walk down the aisle
 Parents wish for college
 Though you'd think they're in denial
 They wouldn't vote you queen of the homecoming
 Though you didn't really want to be
 Organized sports and much counselling
 Pushed you over, sent you packing
 Crust punk queen
 Left mom and dad when you were 17
 And tore up those jet black jeans
 Hopped on a train into a troubled scene
 With all the trust fund drug fiends
 Who don't care about the
 Don't seem to care about the American dream
 Who don't care about the American dream
 From my own prison I hear my stomach grumble
 My father's footsteps are so far apart that I could stumble
 I see who walks upon the cracks of the concrete jungle
 I wish I could just fall apart so you would help me crumble
 They wouldn't vote you queen of the homecoming
 Though you didn't really want to be
 Organized sports and much counselling

Pushed you over, sent you packing
 Crust punk queen
 Left mom and dad when you were 17
 And tore up those jet black jeans
 Hopped on a train into a troubled scene
 With all the trust fund drug fiends
 Who don't care about the
 Don't seem to care about the American dream
 Who don't care about the
 Don't seem to care about the American dream
 Who don't care about the American dream
 Mom and dad this little hell which hangs over my head
 And I know it's gonna show up once again
 Mom and dad I need a little more money to get by
 And I promise that this shit is gonna end
 And when the fog clears look in my eyes I'll be Coming home once again
 Crust punk queen
 Left mom and dad when you were 17
 And tore up those jet black jeans
 Hopped on a train into a troubled scene
 With all the trust fund drug fiends
 Who don't care about the
 Don't seem to care about the American dream
 Who don't care about the
 Don't seem to care about the American dream
 Who really cares about the American dream
