 Well the drunken clown still hanging 'round
 But it's plain the laughters all died down
 The tears you tried so hard to hide are flowing
 And a blind man with his knife in hand

Has convinced himself that he understands
 I wish him well, miss Carousel
 But I gotta be a going

Am Em
 Won't you come and get me when
 You're sure that you don't need me then
 I'll stand outside your window
 And proudly call your name

C Em
 Well the lady's been told that all her gold
 Is worth so much she can't be sold
 No time to weep, she'll later sleep tomorrow
 When she carries her face to the market place
 And bets it on the open enrage
 She can ring her bells, miss Carousel
 But this singing brings me sorrow

Am Em
 Won't you come and get me when
 You're sure that you don't need me then
 I'll stand outside your window
 And proudly call your name

 But it's always done, every mothers sun
 Is surely grown, and never run
 So they fight with all their might inside them
 When the battles been fought 'n they all been taught
 That the trick is just not being caught
 Will you give 'em hell, miss Carousel
 When they're begging you to hide them

Am Em
 Won't you come and get me when

Am Em
 You're sure that you don't need me then
 I'll stand outside your window
 And proudly call your name

C Em
 When they need a rose, your eyes felt closed
 You clamped your fingers around your nose
 Would you say, that's anyway to judge him
 Well you haven't got the authority
 Too kill him in the first degree
 But would you feel compelled, miss Carousel
 If you had something to regret in

 On velvet beach far beneath the reach
 Of those who come to pray and preach
 The natural man that tried to stand is falling
 Well how long will it be before he sees
 You own his legs but his mind is free
 Only you can tell, miss Carousel
 How long will he be crawling

Am Em
 Won't you come and get me when
 You're sure that you don't need me then
 I'll stand outside your window
 And proudly call your name

 All the castle walls grown so tall
 Seems there ain't no hope at all
 To reach the top even though you stopped for breathing
 But I ain't gonna try to make you cry
 The teardrops couldn't find your eyes
 It's all been swell, miss Carousel
 But the time has come for leaving

Am Em
 Won't you come and get me when
 You're sure that you don't need me then
 I'll stand outside your window
 And proudly call your name

Am Em
 Won't you come and get me when
 You're sure that you don't need me then
 I'll stand outside your window
 And proudly call your name
