

Vian Izak - The Astronaut

```
But your eyes are cold and your lips are blue Abm E
Intro: Abm E B Gb
                                                           I, I never want to come down
                                                                    В
                                                           Nothing left here... The whole thing's just an aching scar
         В
See all the world and it's burning now
 Abm
And I, I never want to let go
                                                           And I, I believe with my whole heart that this is real
         В
I can hold out here
                                                           I'm the last one, I'm up here
  Ebm
Keep on praying for my soul
                                                           And I, I will light the lights up in my heart and hold it back
                                                           From the chaos in the dark
And I, I believe with my whole heart that this is real
     Gb
I'm the last one, I'm up here
                                                           And I, I believe with my whole heart that this is real
And I, I will light the lights up in my heart and hold it back I'm the last one, I'm up here
      Gb
                                                           And I, I will light the lights up in my heart and hold it back
From the chaos in the dark
                                                           From the chaos in the dark
I, I only long for you
